

Brazing, an important welding and joining technology, can achieve precision joining of materials in advanced manufacturing. And the first principle calculation is a new material simulation method in high-throughput computing. It can calculate the interfacial structure, band structure, electronic structure, and other properties between dissimilar materials, predicting ...

The purpose of this utility model is to overcome above-mentioned deficiency, a kind of flat box-type section steel column internal partition welding node structure is provided, can avoid adopting because the little operating personnel of cabinet space cannot enter electrosag welding to weld internal partition, the requirement of internal partition four sides welding can be met again. This ...
