

Where can I buy a battery in Lincolnshire & East Yorkshire?

The Battery Warehouse Ltd is Lincolnshire & East Yorkshire's premier supplier of batteries & charging appliances. What is a Battery? Batteries are made up of 2V cells to produce 6V and 12V batteries. Each cell, in a charged state, is made up of electrodes of Lead (Pb) and Lead Dioxide (PbO₂) in an electrolyte of Sulphuric Acid (H₂SO₄).

Which battery metals can be traded on the LME?

Some key battery metals such as nickel, cobalt, molybdenum and lead are already well established on the LME. We've introduced new futures contracts to provide further hedging and trading opportunities for battery materials.

Is a sealed battery a safety hazard?

These batteries are often called sealed lead-acid batteries, but this term is misleading. A sealed battery would be a safety hazard due to overpressure risks when overcharged and there is always a safety valve present, hence the name valve-regulated. Sealed is opposed to vented (also called flooded).
